[NUMB. 906.]

THE South-Carolina Gazette.

Containing the freshest Advices, Foreign and Domestic.

From MONDAY September 16th, to MONDAY September 23th, 1751.

We are desired to insert the following Pastoral ELEGY, on a young Gentleman lately deceased.

Interitumque tuum, fervent ingemiscit Lares
Hiberniæ.

BENEATH an aged holm, whose arms had made
A cool retreat, a melancholy shade,
Two youthful shepherds came, renown'd in verse;
To sing a solemn dirge at Damon's hearse:
They sang so loud, so musically sweet,
Oaks bow'd their heads, and shook their ropy feet:
The sheep quit feeding, list'ning to their lays,
And herds, applauding, bellow'd forth their praise:
When sad Alexis, leaning on his crook,
(His sighs the winds, his tears had swell'd the brook)
Broke solemn silence; spoke his plaintive woe,
While down his youthful cheeks salt rivers flow.

ALEXIS.

Why should vain sighs, or idle tears be shed?
These common rites, are paid to common dead:
But Damon sure, deserves a greater share
Of grief, if grief exceeds a sigh or tear;
For, if vain tears could raise him from the dead,
I'd summon wand'ring rivers to my head,
And weep them from the sluices of my eyes,
Deluge his tomb, and bid his manes rise:
I'd sing so sweet, and sigh so very loud,
That thou should hear me, Damon, in thy shroud,
Unbar thy charnel, dark, Cymerian cave
And greet thee welcome! starting from the grave!
But music has no charms; our art too late
To call thee back, or alter thy fix'd fate:
Then since I can't; the big round world shall know
That Damon's death's the theme of all my woe.
Accept, dear friend, this tributary verse,
An humble off'ring to thy sable hearse.

STREPHON.

When first I heard the sad, the moving tale,
From my numb'd fingers fell the milking pail;
For when Alexis told the mournful news,
Philtis, and I, were milking of the ewes:
The ewes no more the frothing pail shall fill,
But on green moss their streaming udders spill.

ALEXIS.

The gen'rous steed, forgetful of his food,
(The growing em'rald and the silver flood)
Hangs from his arched neck his drooping head,
And, like Patroclus, mourns thee Damon dead:
For thee, the winds have sigh'd themselves away,
Nor can the breathless zephyrs fan the day;
Thy fate the tenants of the plain bewail,
And fill with tears, instead of milk, the pail.

STREPHON.

Say Death, when your long register is read,
If e'er you saw among the sheeted dead,
A more ingenious shade quaff Lethe's flood?
That less profess'd, or, that more understood?
That softer touch'd the string, or tun'd the reed?
That charm'd the swains, or made the virgins bleed?
But all those charms; mirth, musick, is no more;
A chopfall'n ghost on Lethe's shore:
And wait'st ill fated youth thy wastage o'er.
Weep ev'ry eye that has a tear to shed,
My friend, and mankind's friend, my Damon's dead.
No: he shall never die, his deathless name,
Shall live for ever in the sheets of fame.
Light lie thy manes in earths wormy womb;
May laurels, ever green, adorn thy tomb.

ALEXIS.

Let ev'ry shepherd, annual, at his shrine,
Crown'd with a trefoil chaplet, gay with wine,
Chant solemn songs; thy Obsequies!—alas!
Ill fated youth; thou lov'd thy friend and glass:
Let ev'ry friend that lov'd his glass, now shew
How he lov'd thee, and fill it up with woe,
With liquid woe; 'till drunk, and mad with grief,
He seeks, like thee, from death, his last relief.

STREPHON.

Port-Royal plains! let never balmy dew,
Pouring from chrystal sluices, water you;
Nor, from their silver urns, the Pleiad's pour
The fruitful rain and soft prolific show'r:
May blights and mildews on your fields remain,
And wormy insects gnaw your ricy grain:
For in your field's, entomb'd, does Damon lie.
Port-Royal gods! Why did my Damon die?

ALEXIS.

Now eve's long lengthen'd shadows, from the skies
Decrease, and shorten their gigantic size:
Let's home my Strephon, cot the scatter'd sheep;
Nor spill our tears at once,—but ever weep.

From the LONDON MAGAZINE.——To the Author.

SIR,

THE following epistle was written by a girl at Deal, to her sweet-heart, a sailor, on board a man of war in the Downs. The simplicity of her expression gave me some diversion on the first reading; on the second I could not help comparing her sentiments with those of Ovid's heroines, and found them much the same, when the latter were stript of the polite dress which their courtly secretary has given them. The lieutenant of the ship, who communicated it, found it on board twisted up with tobacco in it; by which it should seem, that our seafaring spark had as little regard for his mistress, after enjoyment, as if he had been of a more illustrious rank.

Lovin der Charls

THIS with mi kind lov to yow, is to tel yow after all our sport and fon i am lik to pay fort; for I am with child, and wereof my sister Nan knos it, and cals me hore and bech and is redy to ter mi fol owt; and curs Jack Sea kices her evry tim he cums ashor, and the sacri dog wold hav lade with me to, but i wold not let him, for i will be alwas onest to yow, therfor der Charls cum ashor, and let us be marred to sase mi vartu: and if you have no moni i wil paun mi nue stais, and sel mi to nue smocks yow gave me, and that wil pa the parson, and find us a dinner, and pra der der Charls cum ashor; and, der Charls, dont be frad for want of a ring, for i hav stol owr Nans, and the nasti tod shal never hav it mor; for she tels abowt, that I am going to hav a basterd: and god bles yowr lovin sol cum ashor, for I longs to be mared acordin to yowr promis, stil i wil be yowr der vartus wife til deth.

Feby. 7. 1744. Sarah Hartrop.

Pray dont let yowr mesmat Jack se se this, if yow do, hel tel our Nan, and shel ter mi hart owt then, for she is a divel at me now.

The following lines were sent us with this letter, which we suppose were designed as a parallel.

DEAR object of my love, whose manly charms
With bliss ecstatick fill'd my circling arms!
That bliss is past; and nought for me remains,
But dire reproach, and never pity'd pains.
For (nature baffling ev'ry art I try'd)
My sister has my growing shame descry'd;

E'er

E'en she assails me with opprobrious name,
When the prude's conscious she deserves the same:
Her loose associate, sated from her slies,
And vainly to seduce my virtue tries.
True as a wife, I only want the name;
O haste and wed me, and preserve my fame.
Unlike most modern matches ours shall be,
From settlements, the lawyers fetters, free;
I'll quit my all and be content with thee.
Then haste away, and strike detraction dead;
The nuptial feast awaits you, and the bed:
Nor fear the band that will endure for life,
With me your loving and your faithful wife.

POSTSCRIPT.

These earnest dictates of my anxious heart,
I beg you will not to your friend impart;
For oft beneath fair friendship's specious show
The traitor lurks, the undermining foe.

Stray'd from Charles-Town, a few months ago, and has been seen in some of the pastures betwixt this and Dorchester, a large-boned, brown bay gelding, about 14 hands and an inch high, without one white spot about him, paces at the rate of 6 or 7 miles an hour pretty true, but strikes short, and is branded on the off buttock with an H and a flower de luce (or something like it) rising from the middle line of it, but the brand is much blotch'd. Whoever brings the said horse to the Printer hereof, shall have 5 l. reward. — If said horse shall be found detain'd in any plantation after the publication of this advertisement, whoever unlawfully detains him, will be prosecuted by Peter Timothy.

THE Co-partnerſhip between MORTON and SAMUEL BRAILSFORD being expired, there is a neceſſity of bringing their affairs to a ſpeedy ſettlement: They therefore deſire all perſons indebted to them, by bond, note or book-debt, to diſcharge their reſpective debts by the firſt of January next; and ſuch perſons that have open accompts, are requeſted to ſettle the ſame forthwith. Thoſe who refuſe or neglect to comply with the above, muſt expect no further indulgence from

To be Sold, for 5 years credit if required, the purchaſer paying the intereſt (and if he thinks proper, part of the principal) annually, DEAN HALL plantation, commonly known by the name of Coat-bank, ſituate about 30 miles from Charles-Town, and being part of the neck of land between Cooper and Back-Rivers, containing 2405 acres old purchaſe (paying only a pepper corn quit-rent,) whereof about 500 acres are inland ſwamp, lying between the ſaid two rivers, and may be eaſily incloſed, 250 acres being already done and planted. There is a ditch partly made upon Back-River, which, when finiſhed, and the creek ſtop'd, will incloſe about 130 acres of land on that river, and give a fall of five feet water for a tide mill. There is about the ſame quantity upon Cooper River, and may eaſily be taken in. The lands now planted with rice, are over flowed, by four reſerves already finiſhed upon the high land: The winter water from thence is ſufficient to make a crop. The other part of the low lands are cedar and river ſwamp. The high or up lands are oak, hickery and pine; all ſo conveniently ſituated on the ſaid rivers and creeks, that there is not a tree half a mile diſtant from the landing. The whole timber, and cedar wood on the ſaid plantation, may be carried in rafts, boats, or ſhips to Charles-Town market (as a ſhip of 300 tons may lie at ſeveral of the bluffs upon Cooper River, on which river the ſaid plantation fronts about 10 miles.
